Artist Statement

As our lives are made up of things we can control and those we cannot so my paintings are expressions formed by purposeful and random actions.

These actions are at once the result of thoughtful acts and a record of the acts in motion.

These purposeful and random acts are the layered body and muscle - the bones and veins that create the visual expression and infuse it with meaning and life.

Title: The Box

From poem A Box by Gertrude Stein

Out of kindness comes redness and out of rudeness comes rapid same question, out of an eye comes research, out of selection comes painful cattle. So then the order is that a white way of being round is something suggesting a pin and is it disappointing, it is not, it is so rudimentary to be analyzed and see a fine substance strangely, it is so earnest to have a green point not to red but to point again. - Gertrude Stein (1874–1946)

Angry sun burn down
Judging us all
Guilty of neglect and disrespect
And thinking small
And death by boredom
And death by greed
If we can't stop taking
More than we need

Title: He considered the tree

Inspired by passage from Still Life, by A.s. Byatt

"Light traveled 186,000 miles a second, and the green he saw was refracted light, for the chlorophyll absorbed the red and blue-violet waves from the sun. The green was the light the tree did not consume. He saw in his mind's eye the drama of the tree, the undifferentiated light pouring, silently, at terrible speed, meeting the solid rising column of water in the living and dead form of the tree."

Miller's fingers are traveling down the length of her thigh
But Miller's mind is still wandering
Staring up at the sky
They come out of the blue sky
They come out of the blue
They come out of the blue sky
But you never know where they're gonna go
Hey Romeo
